

Who Inspires Me in My Family?

by Rahul Verma 4H

My father inspires me because he has to go through lots of stressful things every single day and is still a great dad. He is a medical doctor who is a consultant in respiratory medicine. He is a specialist in a very serious disease called tuberculosis. He saves multiple lives every day and is still a brilliant dad. He was the first person at Leicester Medical School to achieve a PHD which is a special degree whilst studying medicine. He always makes times to help me with my homework and take me to cricket even though he is really busy with his job.

At home he makes sure that he plays with me in the garden, and he also does jobs in the home and takes care of me and my brother when my mum is at work late on Thursdays. On weekdays he gets up really early to sort out all of our school things and help mum. He is really kind and generous towards us and I think he is like that with his patients as well which is why all the patients in the hospital want to see him all the time. He takes care of them really excellently as well.

This is why my father is an inspiration to me.
